China's SooChow Securities has formed a Singapore-based joint venture, SooChow CSSD Capital Markets (SCCM), with Sunstone Capital Markets to provide investment banking services in Asian emerging markets.

Sunstone Capital is owned by the former management team of the international business of India's Religare Capital Markets.

SCCM will provide equity capital market, M&A, private financing, equity research and sales services.

The chairman of SCCM's board of directors is Joseph Kwok.

Jeffrey Wong is head of investment banking, Andrew Jackson and Tata Goeyardi are co-heads of equity, and Muzahir Degani is head of equity capital market.

"SCCM's platform will serve the needs of Chinese clients who want to raise capital across South-East Asia in line with the One Belt One Road theme," a person familiar with the company said.

Singapore-based investment banking and financial advisory firm DHC Capital has entered into a strategic partnership with SCCM, DHC said on Wednesday in a statement on its website.

"We have great confidence in DHC Capital's capabilities and high expectations of the synergies that such a strategic partnership will generate," said SCCM's Wong, according to the statement.
